Monk Seal Fast Facts

Scientific Name - Monachus schauinslandi

Size - Monk seals can grow up to 7 feet long and can weigh as much as 600 lbs.

Diet - These seals are considered to be “generalist” feeders. Which means they eat a wide variety of foods depending on what’s available. The most common include fishes, squids, octopuses, eels and crustaceans (crabs, shrimps and lobsters)

Life Span: The average Hawaiian monk seal lives between 25-30 years.

Habitat: These seals are found on the main and Northwestern Hawaiian Islands. They live in warm, subtropical waters and spend two-thirds of their time at sea.

Predators - Sharks tend to be their biggest predators, specifically, Tiger Sharks.

Fun Facts

- They can remain under water for up to 20 minute.
- They can dive more than 1800 feet deep, the length of FIVE football fields, but prefer to swim in shallow waters of 200 feet or less.
- They love to sleep on beaches for days at a time.

Reduce

reduce: to use less.

It is simply creating less waste in everyday tasks and activities.

Example: Take shorter showers to conserve water.

Reuse

reuse: using an object again for either the same purpose or another purpose.

Example: Reuse grocery bags or host a clothes swap with your friends instead of buying something new.

Recycle

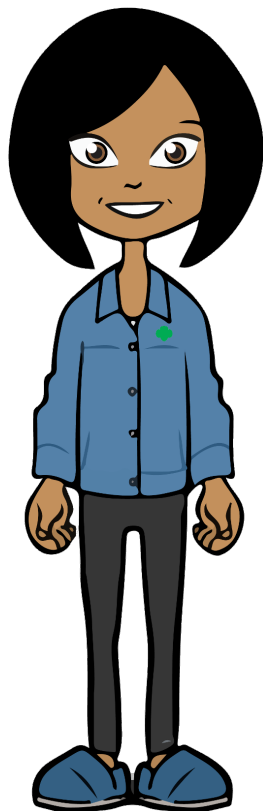

recycle: the process of collecting and processing materials that would otherwise be thrown away as trash and turning them into new products.

Example: Collecting plastic bottles and paper and putting it in your

One of the main reasons why the Hawaiian Monk Seal is on the endangered list is due to the devastation of their habitat. Some of that devastation comes from the litter that is found in the ocean and alongside the beaches where they live.

Make a list of different ways that you, as an individual, can do your part to reduce, reuse, and recycle around your house on a daily basis.

Remember every little bit counts! Share your ideas amongst your troop.
